Profile

EDGE (Executives in a Digital Global Economy) was a business and technology magazine aimed at senior executives, including CEO's, CFO's, CIO's and Vice Presidents who wanted to know how information technology could be used to transform their business.

While EDGE's main focus was on corporate Canada, it looked at the emerging global executive who needed to understand the role of information technology in business strategy. Through a blend of case studies, feature stories and executive profiles, it not only helped to demystify it, it showed how organizations could achieve a competitive advantage. This subscriber list is comprised of executives who have given permission to receive third-party email.
